INDIANA UNIVERSITY.

Batch of Fifteen Young Lawyers Turned Out at the State Institution.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. BLOOMINGTON, Ind., June 13.-The third annual commencement of the Indiana University School of Law was held at the old college chapel, last night, in the presence of a large audience. The programme was divided into two parts. Judge D. D. Banta, dean of the school, had charge, and Luther M. Grimes, president of the class, presided, Hon. Charles H. Fairbanks, by invitation, gave the address before the school. He was presented by Judge Banta. Mr. Fairbanks spoke for an hour on the subject of "Patriotism in Government."

He clearly defined his ideas touching the proper limitations and functions of the state, using the term in its broad and comprehensive sense, that of government. It was a close, incisive and interesting philesophical discussion. His criticism of some of the practices and tendencies pre-vailing in statecraft at the present time served to present his subject in a new light to his auditors. He advocated self-reliance on the part of the people rather than the general trend to rely on govern-mental assistance in the development and mental assistance in the development and growth of national character.

After the address the regular commencement exercises of the class were held. Frank C. Durham, of North Salem, gave the annual oration, his subject being "The Lawyer in Society." He advocated that the lawyer should enter politics, because best equipped by education and practical training for intelligent discussion of all matters of public concern.

The class history was read by John R. Ward, of Monticello, Ind. It was a humorous take-off on the faculty, the university and the law graduating class in particular, and was enjoyed by the audience. The degrees and diplomas will be conferred Wednesday morning by President Coulter. The law graduating class consists of fifteen members, and is recognized as being unusually strong, each of them having done more or less in the literary department. The members of the class are:

Linton R. Allen, Indianapolis; Ben T. Carr, Chalmers: Frank C. Durham, North Salem; Marion L. Grimes, Bloomington; N. J. Hays, Lex-ington; James J. H. Hamilton (A. B.), Easton, l'a.; F. M. Ingler, Bloomington; William M. Louden (A. B.), Bloomington; Robert G. Miller, Montmorency; Aus. Retherford, Anderson; Ila H. Sample, Millgrove; W. S. Tipton, Clay City; James L. Weaver, (A. B.), Cutler; J. R. Ward, Monticello; J. E. Stuart, Marengo.

It is the intention of the members of the class to commence the practice of law at once, with the exception of Messrs, Carr and Stewart, who will take special work in the literary department of the university. The election of W. P. Rogers as professor of law was confirmed by the trustees, his first year's work being most satisfactory. With Judge Banta as dean the work of the law department could not be placed in better hands, and its increased attendance is assured, as is evidenced by the present | E. W. Abbott; 3-6, 6-2, 6-4. junior class, which numbers more than forty students.

DOINGS OF THE ALUMNI. The Alumni Association of Indiana University beld its annual business meeting to-day, which was largely attended. The interest centered in the annual election of an alumni trustee. A long discussion followed over the charge that improper electioneering had been carried on by friends of some of the candidates, which finally resuited in throwing out one of the ballots | cussed at length the elements of Haw.

that was cast on a postal card. The name of Senator C. A. Debruler was withdrawn on his demand, and the result of the first ballot was: C. A. Debruler, 41; O. E. Hub-bell, 102; J. H. Shea, 131, and 8 scattering. On the second ballots O. E. Hubbell, 7; J. H. Shea, 35. The election board rejected the postal card ballots, which, however, did not change the result. Joseph Shes, the new alumni trustee, is a graduate of the class of 1889, and lives at Lexington. Ind. Though a young man he is already recognized as a leading attorney of that part of the State. He is a Democrat, is now prosecuting attorney of his circuit. He is a broad-minded young man and will make a valuable officer for the university. He is a Catholic. He succeeds Senator

Leydon, of New Albany. The committee on nominations reported the following officers for next year, who were elected: President, Prof. R. J. Aley, '88; vice president, Prof. J. C. Weir, '80; recording secretary, Grace Rawles,'91; correspond-Ing secretary, Sophia Sheeks, '92: treasurer, B. F. Adams, jr., '88. Hon. C. A. Debruler, of Evansville, was elected alumni orator for 1894 and C. L. Goodwin was selected for the alternate orator on motion of Edwin Corr. The day's business closed with the annual alumni banquet, which was largely attended. Senator McMullan acted as toastmaster and the following responses were made:

"The Law," J. J. H. Hamilton, class '92;
"The University." President Joseph Swain, class '83; "The Last Thing Out," Walter M. Wood, class '93; "The New Administration," President John M. Coulter. The annual address before the society was given to-night by Miss Mabel Banta, on "The Mistake of the Modern College." The board of trustees has re-elected Isaac Jenkinson, president, and Rev. S. R. Lyons secretary. A vacancy has been created in the librarian's office which will be filled at the next meeting of the board.

CLASS DAY AT EARLHAM. Graduating Exercises of the Biblical Department, with Three Candidates. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. RICHMOND, Ind., June 13. - Commencement of the Biblical department of Earlham College took place Monday afternoon. This course is about equal to one college year, and is designed to instruct students for the Friends' ministry. The order of exercises Relation of the Church to Moral Reform," Elizabeth Larkin, Samantha, O.; "A Student's Temptation," Enos Harvey, Fairmount.

Diplomas were presented by President Mills, after which there was an address by Alfred Brown, of Spiceland. In the annual entertainment by the Ionian and Phonix literary societies the programme was: Oration, "Speak to the Earth and It Shall Teach Thee," Ida M. Mendenhall; satire, "Signs and Omens," A. Z. Stubbs; declamation, "Willie Baird," Agnes Lawson; Greek scene. Sophocles Antigone; scene 1, Antigone, Alice Whittier Jones; Ismene, Clarinet Gardner; oration, "American Debt," J. Freeman Cox.

This morning was occupied by the class day exercises. They consisted of a miscellaneous programme of humorous reministences concluding with the "Class Prophecy," by three witches. The room was darkened, three witches came on the stage and a stereopticon picture of a large boiling cauldron was thrown on the wall back of the stage. In response to the harsh and monotonous conjuration of a witch the images of the members of the senior class rose in turn from the smoke of the cauldron, while the "history of their future" was read by the witches. This afternoon the annual address before the literary societies was delivered by Hon. Will Cumback, and this evening the annual address before the alumni was delivered by Prof. B. F. Traeblood, of Baltimore. cauldron was thrown on the wall back of

ALUMNI DAY AT DE PAUW.

Representatives of Every Decade Since 1840 Take Part in the Exercises. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

GREENCASTLE, Ind., June 13 .- Alumni day at DePauw University was one of universal interest. The various classes held their reunions in the morning, and the alumni camp fire and mass meeting came off in the afternoon. Speeches were made by representatives of the several decades, beginning with 1840, and there was not a dull or prosy speech in the entire lot. The representatives of the several decades were not contined to the male sex. Beginning with 1870, the voice of woman was heard in the responses, and the claim was made by the venerable Bishop Bowman that DePauw was the first distinctively male educational institution in the world to recognize the claims of coeducation and place women on an equal footing with men. The order was issued in 1866, and the doors of the institution were opened to both sexes during the next year. The wise and beneficent results attending its adoption were aptly demonstrated, if in no other way, by the happy utterances of the beneficiaries of the new dispensation.

The reunion and banquet of the society of the alumni came off to-night. The oration was by Olin R. Brouse, A. M., of Rockford, Ill., and the poem by Minnetta T. Taylor, A. M., of this city. The poem was in keeping with all of Miss Taylor's former productions, and the class of 1866, of which Mr. Brouse was a member. was honored by his able, elequent and scholarly oration. The banquet at Woman's Hall was characterized by the proverbial "feast of reason and tlow of soul."

The board of trustees adjourned to-day to meet at Indianapolis. June 21, when matters effecting the monetary interests of the university will be considered.

FIELD DAY AT FRANKLIN.

Address by John L. Griffiths Before the College Literary Societies. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

FRANKLIN, Ind., June 13 .- A splendid crowd witnessed the athletic sports on the campus this afternoon. Although there were no records broken, and the records made were not up to those of previous years, still each event was hotly contested and very exciting. In the evening Mr. John L. Griffiths gave a masterly address before the literary soeleties on "An Estimate of Nathaniel Hawthorne." He said that Hawthorne's writings had contributed more perhaps than the writings of any American to give color and proper direction to an important department of literature. He referred to him as an "epoch-maker in the history of American letters," because he had lifted fiction out of the low levels of fancy into the higher regions of pure imaginative prose. He dis-

PANIC IN SWEATER SHOPS

Four Polish Jews Killed, Two Fatally Hurt and Five Seriously Injured.

Fire That Was Probably Started by a Cigarette Soon Enveloped a Big Building and Caused a Fatal Rush to the Escapes.

NEW YORK, June 13. - The six-story building, filled with sweater shops, at Nos. 10 and 12 Montgomery street, caught fire at 8:30 o'clock this morning, and in the wild rush to the street of the 250 people working in it, four were killed and several injured, as follows:

Dead—Ceria Davis, eighteen years old; Akivos Boox, twenty-eight years old, Russian, tailor; Joseph Mendelsshon, a Russian, tailor, twenty-six years old; Annie Katzen, sixteen years old.

Fatally Injured—Morris Nadleston, a Russian tailor, burned all over the body; his daughter Alice, thirteen years old, limbs fractured and badiy burned about body.

Others Injured—Morris Siegel, forty-five years old, Russian, contusion about legs; Gussie Ogoslansky, Russian, eighteen years old, domestic

head; Meyer Hymans, forty-two years old, Russian, tailor, sealp wounds:——Rerschoff, Russian, tailor, sprained ankie.

The fire started under the stairs. The police think it was caused by a lighted eigarette, which some one threw under the stairway. The fiames suddenly burst out and shot up to the fourth floor. The immates, who were Polish Hebrewa, excitable under any circumstances, were panicstricken. There was no escape from the rear of the building. No fire escapes were there, and even if there were, there was no way to take advantage of them, for iron shutters, spiked in, covered all the windows on the rear side. The 250 people rushed to the front and fought like demons for places on the fire escape. The women appeared to be more composed than the men, for the latter fought furiously. One would make an attempt to go down through the manhole in a fire escape, when a dozen would pull him back. The ladder had not yet been lowered from the first-floor fire escape to the pavement, and thirty people were huddled together there. Some girls had lowered themselves through the manhole by their hands and dropped to the street without sustaining any great injury. That was the situation when the first policeman arrived on the scene. The officer tells what then happened:

"Just as I ran in front of the building the flames burst like a rocket from the second and third floors and leaped out nearly across the street. The excitement that existed was outdone a hundred times by the panic which followed. There was no longer any fighting on the fire escapes. The people dashed through the manholes in the fire escapes like rats running from danger. They fell on each other's heads as they came down and were piled three tiers deep. The ladder from the first to jump was a large woman. She lighted on the pavement. In the first to jump was a large woman. She lighted on the pavement. His skull was crushed, and he never moved. A second man followed him in an instant. He too struck on his head but ment. His skull was crushed, and he never moved. A second man followed him in an instant. He, too, struck on his head, but did not die immediately. A young girl was the fourth to leap. She fell on her side, All this time I was yelling to the people not to jump, and was trying to place the ladder against the fire escape. The people kept jumping all around me. Four or five leaped into my arms and were not hurt." A hook and ladder truck had arrived by this time and the long scaling ladders were erected against the fire escapes, and the people who still stood there were taken down. Some scrambled across from the first balcony to a little ledge on the next building and lowered themselves by that way. One of the men who had jumped was taken into a liquor store on the corner. He died three minutes later. Four ambulances were summoned. Gussie Ogoslausky was taken to a drug store and had ber wounds dressed. She and a man who had become stark mad were sent to the hospital in one ambulance. About a dozen were treated at a near-by hospital. Two dead bodies were dragged across the street to a liquor store and a fire patrol wagon took them around to a police station. Celia Davis was on the second floor when the flames burst suddenly from the windows. Her clothes caught fire. Wrapped in fire, she fell to the first fire escape and then to the street. Her clothes were burned completely off. For a half hour the blaze defied the efforts of the firemen. Every floor was on fire at the same time. A second and third alarm was rung in quick succession. Two streams were played on every floor. Three horses in a stable below were burned to death and the streets around were blocked with people. Police were called out and had hard work keeping the crowd in cheek. The howling of the people was terrific. Many of them had relatives who worked in the building. and their grief was taken up by their friends until the whole crowd had joined in the uproar. The fire was finally gotten under control, after it had damaged the building to the extent of $5,000. Alice Nodlestone, the girl who was badly burned about the head and body, died at the Gouveneur Hospital at 10:20 o'clock tonight. The girl's father. Morris Nodlestone, who was badly burned and received severe bruises by jumping from a window, is at the hospital in a very serious condi-
